Abstrak

Man is a social being so that man needs other people in his association. In this study that the Red and White indecosan became a place of residence that brought together various cultures. As a resident of the Red and White indecoses there is a cooperation that is built in the indekosan. In order to find a meaning in association of indigenous Red and White residents, this research uses qualitative research methods. As the basis of the assumptions of researchers using the theory of symbolic interactionism Mead's work. Researchers use qualitative methods and observations to see the relationship between theories of symbolic interaction in the association of the residents of the Red and White inducoses. The results found in this study are:

1. Child indekosan is a form of life in practice in the community who use the rental room as a residence that lives in the midst of society. 2. In life as a child indekosan certainly formed a relationship or even the relationship between the owner of the indekosan as a host with the children indekosan. 3. Those who live as children of indekosan certainly have a perception of each child indekosan against other ethnicity who are also located in the Red and White indecosan. 4. But behind that their association within the fabric formed a harmonization in the form of cooperation
